

KAPLAN KIRSCH ROCKWELL

About the Firm

The attorneys of Kaplan Kirsch & Rockwell are known for solving problems that involve environmental, land use, public lands and transportation law. We serve government, individual and corporate clients on complex and controversial matters that are subject to intense public scrutiny, involve the intersection of public and private interests, and often can be resolved by crafting innovative solutions from fresh perspectives.

Kaplan Kirsch & Rockwell was formed by a group of Denver-based attorneys whose extensive national experience includes, on average, more than 20 years of public sector and private practice in environmental law, transportation issues and project development. Our lawyers have been counsel to a wide variety of public agencies across the nation, represented public interest organizations in high-profile environmental litigation, served as government counsel at the highest levels of federal and local government and represented a wide range of clients on cutting-edge compliance issues. Our lawyers have a national reputation as handling some of the largest and most sophisticated public infrastructure projects including Brownfields redevelopment, airports and highways.

Kaplan Kirsch & Rockwell attorneys provide skilled, creative legal representation and an understanding of the public sector that comes from direct experience in cities and counties nationwide and in the executive, legislative and judicial branches of state and federal government.
