Op-Ed: Time-Entry System Enhances National Park Experience

09.29.20

Firm Attorney Sarah Judkins published a guest opinion in the Boulder Daily Camera supporting Rocky Mountain National Park's time-entry reservation system. The reservation system, implemented to help control over-crowding at the Park during the COVID-19 pandemic, is an important public safety measure and has allowed visitors to have safe and positive experiences while enjoying and recreating in Colorado's beautiful landscapes.
